

NATIONAL TELEVISION AND COMPUTER RECYCLING SCHEME

IT'S IMPORTANT TO RECYCLE E-WASTE

We live in an age of amazing technologies and as consumers we enjoy the benefits of the latest electronics. The downside comes when our electronic devices break or are replaced. Today, the quantity of e-waste (as it's known) is increasing three times faster than other types of waste items. Most of us don't know what to do with this e-waste.

TechCollect is focused on environmentally sound collection and recycling and provides small business and the general public with access to free drop off and recycling for computers and televisions.

The National Television and Computer Recycling Scheme is regulated by the Australian Government under the Product Stewardship Act 2011 and is a key component of Australia's National Waste Policy.

THE BENEFITS OF TECHCOLLECT

The collection and recycling of computer and television waste helps to divert materials from landfill and increases the recycling rates of e-waste across Australia. This means materials such as glass, plastics and metals are recovered and reprocessed for use in the manufacture of other products.

Effective recycling of e-waste results in the safe management of potentially hazardous substances without harm to human health and ecosystems.

Ensuring workplace health and safety is an important objective of the TechCollect program and we work very closely with reputable recyclers and transport companies to comply with relevant regulations, standards and codes of practice.

TechCollect is run by a not-for-profit organisation (ANZRP) which is 100% member funded and committed to positive environmental outcomes and meeting community expectations. This includes delivering the program across Australia so that the general public can enjoy the benefits of an environmentally sound computer and television recycling program.

The companies behind ANZRP are some of the world's most progressive brands and manufacturers, and they understand the sustainability benefits associated with waste avoidance and resource recovery.

In partnership with industry, governments and the community, we can be part of Australia's long-term solution to recycling computer and television waste. Get involved today!

The TechCollect program works closely with local councils, social enterprises and retailers to provide collection events, drop off locations and approved e-waste recyclers.
