Normanville has been crowned the 2025 Hello SA Small Tourism Town

Normanville Wins SA Small Tourism Town Award!

We are extremely proud to announce that Normanville has been crowned the 2025 Hello SA Small Tourism Town and will now represent South Australia at the National Awards!

This prestigious recognition follows a collaborative effort between the Fleurieu Coast Visitor Centre team and the Yankalilla Normanville Progress Association, who submitted an entry for the SA Top Tourism Town Awards. Their submission highlighted Normanville as a premier coastal destination, showcasing its commitment to innovation, sustainability and delivering exceptional visitor experiences while supporting the local community.

Normanville thrives on strong collaboration between local businesses, tourism operators and the wider community. From the much-loved New Year's Eve Pageant, which welcomes up to 7,000 visitors, to the Normanville Village Green, which serves as a hub for markets, celebrations and boutique shopping, enriching the town's cultural vibrancy.

We are delighted that Normanville has been recognised and cannot wait to share our small but spectacular part of the world on the National stage.

Supporting 5CY – A Community Effort

At the February Club Fleurieu Lunch, I had the privilege of joining President Louise Allstrom to present a cheque for $6,500 to Keren Webber, following the success of the Mayor's Charity Dinner and Club Fleurieu Bingo in January.

Keren was thrilled to accept this generous donation on behalf of 5CY and shared some powerful insights into the ongoing need for their Community Pantry services. With more families relying on their support than ever before, it's a reminder of the important role organisations like 5CY play in our region.

I'd like to extend my sincere thanks to everyone who contributed to making this fundraiser such a success. Plans are already underway to make this an annual event and I look forward to seeing our community come together once again in support of this vital cause.

Advocating for Our Community During Drought Conditions

Our region is currently facing one of the lowest recorded rainfalls in history and the impact is being felt across our community. Many residents, including our farmers and local businesses, are struggling with the ongoing dry conditions.

I have taken every opportunity to advocate for additional support, both through discussions with MPs and in the media, to ensure the state and federal governments are aware of the challenges we are facing.

This week, I was pleased to see additional water carriers authorised to deliver essential supplies, a step in the right direction. However, we know more needs to be done. Council will continue working closely with stakeholders to push for further assistance and ensure our community receives the support it needs in these difficult times.

As always, I encourage anyone struggling with the effects of drought to reach out - whether to Council, support services, or each other.

Warm regards,
Darryl Houston
Mayor

Normanville Pontoon is Back!

Great news - the Normanville Pontoon is back in the water and ready for everyone to enjoy again!

Following necessary repairs due to damage earlier this year, the pontoon has now been successfully reinstalled. I take this opportunity to appreciate the dedication of our team who completed most of the repairs in-house. Once the damaged parts were replaced, we lined up the contractors and awaited suitable weather conditions.

Our team really appreciates the community's patience throughout this process and we hope you can make the most of the pontoon while the warm weather lasts.

Council Finalises Representation Review

The District Council of Yankalilla has taken an important step in ensuring ongoing fair and effective local representation by finalising its Representation Review Report. This follows a thorough review process, including public consultation, in accordance with the Local Government Act 1999.

At its recent meeting, Council authorised me to submit the final report to the Electoral Commissioner for certification.

The Representation Review, conducted every eight years, ensures Council's structure remains aligned with the community's needs and complies with legislative requirements.

Council has resolved to retain the current Ward Boundaries, the current number of Wards and the number of Elected Members that represent each Ward. The only change will be a legislatively mandated shift to having a publicly elected Mayor, which will increase the current number of Elected Members to ten including that Mayor position.

Once certified by the Electoral Commissioner, the approved representation structure will take effect for future elections.

As part of the Representation Review, the Council was also asked to consider its name. Recognising the existing 'Fleurieu Coast' brand, the Council sought public input on a potential shift to 'Fleurieu Coast Council' as an option which was felt to appropriately reflect the coastal geography of the Council area within the broader Fleurieu Region while also connecting communities from multiple townships and hamlets within our district.

As expected, this proposal generated significant community interest and feedback as a topic we can all connect with. While there was notable support for the idea, a higher number of submissions opposed the change with a key sentiment emerging that now is not the right time as there are other priorities to focus on. Based on the insights gathered through the consultation process, Council has decided not to pursue a name change at this time.

Recovering from the busy holiday season makes the last month feel like a breeze for our businesses, but with the continuation of the summer vibes, the Fleurieu Coast Visitor Centre has seen a steady flow of visitors over the long weekend and, of course, the continuation of the Rapid Bay Camping Ground bookings.

Most weekends at Rapid Bay are sold out and if you want to reserve a spot for that family-friendly experience, you will need to book at least a week in advance.

Festival Fleurieu

Festival Fleurieu bookings are heating up! As the ticket hub for this biannual event, we are looking forward to another great festival. Of special interest is the Imagine Your World in Stories and Art Children's Festival, which promises to be a well-attended and informative suite of events at the Yankalilla Cultural Centre and Library.

The pinnacle is the Lunchtime session Guest Speaker - Mem Fox. Mem Fox is a passionate advocate for literacy, Mem speaks extensively on the subject in the most engaging way, reading her stories aloud to captivated audiences and demonstrating the way in which literacy can inspire and educate. This new direction for Festival Fleurieu is innovative and will bring extra visitors to our area during the nine-day extravaganza. To book your tickets, visit <https://www.visitfleurieucoast.com.au/festival-fleurieu>.

Fleurieu Peninsula Tourism

Continuing with our theme of collaboration, we partnered with Fleurieu Peninsula Tourism and the South Australian Tourism Commission to deliver a Winter Marketing Optimisation Session and Fleurieu Food Festival networking drinks at the Normanville Surf Life Saving Club (NSLSC) on March 27. The success of these programs and the assistance they provide to our local businesses can't be understated, and our team works hard to create these opportunities within our area as often as possible.

Additionally, the session contained a networking function for businesses interested in connecting to the Fleurieu Food Festival, which happens in August. In its third year, the Fleurieu Food Festival is looking to reimagine the opportunity for visitation to our venues and country producers. Keep an eye out for promotion of this event in future editions, as it is a festival not to miss.

FCVC Surprise

Shhh... don't tell anyone, but we will have a surprise at the Fleurieu Coast Visitor Centre very soon! You may have noticed some development work by our skilful outdoor team to make way for an exciting attraction at the FCVC. Stay tuned - you'll see more after April 6!

If you want to find out more, come and catch up with one of our experienced and friendly team at the Fleurieu Coast Visitor Centre.

Council delivers its news in different formats, and you have the option of receiving it in the best way that suits you!

Fire Wise Grant Project Finale- a Celebration of the Achievements

On Monday, 17 February, the Fleurieu Environment Centre ran an event to celebrate the achievements of the Fire Wise Grant Project. Attendees enjoyed presentations from project partners, including the Fleurieu Environment Centre's Project Officer, Maddie Maguire, Green Adelaide's Southern Coastal Conservation Officer, Corey Jackson (who is hosted by the District Council of Yankalilla), Burka Senior Man, Karl Winda Telfer and Local Environmental Consultant, Paul Green.

Over the past two years the Fleurieu Environment Centre in partnership with the Fleurieu Coast Community Nursery, Green Adelaide and the District Council of Yankalilla have delivered this $250,000 grant project focusing on investigating the flammability of local native plants species and how planting methodologies can be used to improve the resilience of our local landscapes and protect assets against the threats of bushfire.

This grant was part of the Landscape Resilience Program delivered across 10 local government areas in Australia and supported by the Foundation for National Parks and Wildlife with grant funding received from the Australian Government through the Preparing Australian Communities local stream.

The Fire Wise Grant is now coming to an end in our region, but it has had numerous positive outcomes, including on-ground revegetation sites, the delivery of over 20 educational events, including workshops, plant giveaways and propagation demonstrations, and the development of resources and knowledge relating to fire-wise plant selection, use, and maintenance within the Yankalilla and Onkaparinga Local Government Areas.

We'd like to thank all those who have been involved in this project and helped us achieve this incredible array of outcomes. For more information about the grant please head FLEC's website <https://www.flec.com.au/firewise-grant>

Adelaide Writers' Week

Yankalilla Library offered the community live stream of this year's Adelaide Writers' Week (AWW) from the Pioneer Women's Garden in Adelaide into the Meeting a from 3 - 6 March.

Part of the Adelaide Festival, Writers' Week has long been a favourite gathering place for lovers of literary exploration, storytelling and reflection. This year's offerings were diverse and poignantly reflective of the times. There was celebration, entertainment, debate, truth, fiction, challenges and many interesting points of view.

Over the four days, 118 people attended 34 different sessions without having to travel, find a park or find a seat. The participants gave positive feedback, thanking the Council for offering the chance to watch, listen to and enjoy Adelaide Writers' Week for four days in March.

We are once again grateful to the Office for Ageing Well for sponsoring the live stream and making it free for guests of many public libraries across SA to enjoy.

Exciting New Early Learning Kits at the Yankalilla Library

We are excited to introduce a brand-new collection in the Children's area of the Yankalilla Library! Our new early learning kits, designed for children from birth to five years old, each contain a book paired with a matching toy, puzzle or activity to enhance the reading experience.

These engaging kits have been made possible through grant funding from the Words Grow Minds Libraries Board and the LBW Trust and Australian Country Libraries Program.

The Words Grow Minds campaign highlights the importance of early childhood development, showing how simple activities - talking, reading, playing and singing - can help babies and young children thrive from birth.

The Learning for a Better World Trust, in collaboration with Friends of Libraries Australia (FOLA), provides essential funding to support regional, rural and remote libraries across Australia - helping us bring valuable resources like these to our community.

What parents are saying:
"Thoroughly enjoyed reading this to my baby daughter!"

"My 5-year-old daughter loved the puppets and the extra fun they added. We had three generations playing together!"

Visit us at Yankalilla Library and explore these fantastic new kits today!

Easter egg foil - here's your excuse to eat more chocolate

Yes, you can recycle aluminium foil wrapping from all those yummy easter eggs and bilbies. But... you should scrunch the clean and dry foil into a fist-sized ball to pop into your recycle bin. So, hop to it, that's a fair few Easter eggs you'll need to eat to make a fist-size ball. Enjoy!

Food Safety

With the Environmental Health Officer

Food safety when camping or bushwalking

Food poisoning is no fun at the best of times, but it can be a major problem if you are camping or bushwalking and away from the convenience of toilets, hand basins and medical help. It is more prevalent in warm weather but can happen at any time of the year.

Prevention is always better than cure and you can minimise the risk of getting food poisoning by being especially cautious about choosing the food you bring along, storing it at the correct temperature and being particular about how you handle it.

Choosing food to bring with you

The foods you choose for your camping or bush walking trip will depend on the type of food storage you have available, how much you can carry and whether safe water is available to add to foods.

Recommended foods:

- Dry, UHT and canned products. Bush walkers usually rely on dried or freeze-dried foods which are safe and have the advantage of low weight and bulk. If you are bush walking, pack your dried foods so they won't get wet if it rains.
- Canned food is safe to keep at room temperature, but it tends to be too heavy to carry in any quantity when bushwalking.
- Hard cheeses can be taken without refrigeration or in an insulated cooler, but avoid taking fresh, unmaturred soft cheeses unless you have access to refrigeration.
- Fresh fruit and vegetables can be taken, but in warm weather, some will deteriorate quickly, so you may need some extra dried or canned varieties for later use. Most foods in cans or jars cannot be stored out of refrigeration once opened. Make sure that you buy containers small enough to use all the food in one meal.

Extra precautions:

- Perishable foods such as raw and cooked meats, poultry, chilled ready-to-eat foods, dairy foods and cooked eggs are generally unsuitable for camping holidays unless you have access to a refrigerator. If you have a cooler that depends on ice or ice bricks for cooling, you should not keep such foods for more than one day unless the cooler is able to hold the temperature of the food at or below 5 degrees Celsius.
- If you are relying on dried food, make sure that you have access to enough safe water to rehydrate any food that will not be thoroughly cooked before consumption. Remember, water, even in remote and pristine wilderness, is not necessarily safe and can be contaminated by animal faeces and naturally occurring parasites like Giardia. Unless you are sure that the water is safe, you should boil all water for at least one minute (a little longer if you are at high altitudes) or disinfect it before drinking it or using it in powdered drinks or other uncooked foods.

- Avoid creating leftovers: discard them unless you can store them at or below 5 °C until they are eaten.
- If you are going bushwalking overnight, you can take a frozen pre-prepared meal (eg stew or casserole) or frozen raw meat for cooking, provided that you eat it on the first night. Package the raw meat well so that the juices do not contaminate the rest of your food and bury the package deep in your backpack for extra insulation. Cook or reheat well.
- Always defrost any frozen food in a cooler or refrigerator when camping.

Using coolers and eskies

- Insulation properties and ease of cleaning are the two most important factors in choosing a cooler.
- Don't pack food that has just been cooked or is still warm. Coolers cannot cool food enough to prevent bacteria from growing.
- Meat and chicken juices can easily leak onto other food in a cooler – make sure you package any raw meat and chicken in leak proof containers and place them on the bottom of the cooler and away from ready to eat food.
- To keep foods cool, use freezer bricks, frozen gel packs or containers with frozen water (a brine solution of 5 parts water to one part of salt freezes at a lower temperature than water). Many campgrounds have fridges in camp kitchens where you can refreeze bricks and gel packs. Do not use loose ice unless foods are stored in waterproof containers. This will prevent ice from contaminating foods in the cooler and wetting the food. Periodically, you should pour out the water formed and replace it with fresh ice.
- Pack as much as you can in the frozen state – e.g. milk, juices etc. These will help keep the other foods cool but remember, unless you have refrigeration, they will need to be eaten as they thaw out.
- Organise your food in the cooler to limit the times the cooler is opened. Consider using separate coolers for food and drinks if the cooler will constantly be opened for drinks.
- If possible, fill any excess space in your cooler with frozen drinking water. The fuller the cooler, the longer it will hold its temperature.
- When you have chosen your camping site, get your cooler out of the car into the shade as soon as possible. Keep it out of the sun. Take a hint from our ancestors and cover the cooler with a wet-bag to promote evaporative cooling.

Car fridges and electric coolers

Portable fridges and electric coolers are also now available and may be useful if you are travelling by car. Electric coolers are not refrigerators and have a limited cooling capability (usually about 30 degrees C below the environment temperature). Therefore, they can only be used for short periods of storage in hot weather.

- It's a good idea to have a fridge thermometer in your cooler or portable fridge to check on the temperature.
- Make sure the power supply is constant. When camping, you might need to find an alternate power supply so your car battery isn't drained.

Cooking and reheating

- Always cook chicken, stuffed meats, sausages, liver and minced meat such as hamburger so that the juices run clear – there should be no hint of pink in the centre. Steaks, chops and whole pieces of meat can be cooked to preference.
- Use a clean plate and clean utensils for cooked meat. Never reuse the same ones you used for the raw meat without washing them.
- When reheating food, make sure that you heat it to steaming hot.

Drinking water and water for rehydrating food to be eaten without further cooking

Boil water vigorously for at least one minute (a little longer if you are at high altitudes). Boiling water is the most efficient method of disinfection, chemical methods may not kill some parasitic organisms (giardia amoeba, and cryptosporidium).

Camp Hygiene

- Keep utensils used for preparing raw foods well away from ready-to-eat foods. Wash them thoroughly between uses and remember to wash your hands before handling food.
- Always wash hands and dry them thoroughly after going to the toilet as it is just as important when you are camping as it is when you are at home. Use disposable wipes if necessary. Don't forget to take this rubbish back out with you when you leave.
- Cover and store food off the ground to protect it from insects, animals and dust.
- Keep your campsite clean. Birds and animals can be a source of food poisoning bacteria so don't leave food, dirty utensils, food scraps and rubbish lying about to attract them. Food scraps and rubbish should be kept in a bin or bag that can be sealed. Keep utensils, cutlery and cooking equipment clean to help prevent birds and animal from being interested in your campsite.
- You must carefully dispose of rubbish and wastewater because they can attract pests and contaminate food and water. All rubbish should be put in bags and kept away from food. Tip: wash-up and other wastewater in any designated site or at least well away from water sources such as lakes and rivers.

Artists' Q&A

Ask Your Questions

Artists from the Fleurieu Peninsula and beyond are invited to the Festival Fleurieu Artists Q&A Forum.

Thursday, 24th April 2025.

1 pm - 2.45 pm.

Club Fleurieu 140-142 Main South Road Yankalilla.

Tickets are limited, so get in early. At just $5 each, tickets are available from the Festival Fleurieu website, www.festivalfleurieu.com.au, or via the Fleurieu Coast Visitor Centre, 85580 0240.

Representatives from Country Arts SA, Access2Arts, Guildhouse, and the District Council of Yankalilla will be available to address your inquiries and discuss the most effective ways to support your aspirations in the arts.

This event is for creatives working across all media, including performance, visual, literary, music, technological arts, and more. It is a chance to build new connections and networks.

Supporting our local artists and creatives is essential. Working within the creative industries is an extremely hard slog, often alone. Finding the right help and information to build our career aspirations and practice can be very difficult, particularly when working in the regions. The Artists Q&A Forum is an excellent place to find new networks and learn how we can work together to improve our careers and region.

Outside of Adelaide, the Fleurieu Peninsula has the most practicing artists in South Australia. The Fleurieu region is one of the premier cultural destinations within South Australia.

One of the wonderful benefits of working in the creative industries is the Fleurieu region's tourism potential. Accessing this fabulous audience can be overwhelming when working solo. Tourists don't visit culturally dead places. Creatives and artists within the region have an exciting opportunity to take the lead and make the region the best place in Australia to experience cultural vibrancy.

We want artists to succeed, and Festival Fleurieu Artists Q&A is about how we can work together to make the region the best place to create, live and visit.

Please attend and ask your questions about how your career, practice, or anything related to art can be supported.

Presented by Festival Fleurieu and Tripod Dog Gallery (Art by Leith Semmens).
